RESUME OF FORREST ROGER WILLIAMS

Forrest R. Williams, United States Navy, was born in Manila, Kentucky, on 9 September 1933. He attended the U. S. Naval Academy, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Science with distinction in 1956.

Following a tour in operations and gunnery aboard the cruiser USS NORTHAMPTON, he served as Chief Engineer on the Destroyer GEARING.

In June 1962 he received the degree of Master of Science in Meteorology with distinction from the Naval Postgraduate School. He then served as Gunnery Department Head on the Amphibious Assault Ship THETIS BAY.

In April 1966 he served at Fleet Weather Central, Norfolk, Virginia, as a Forecast Duty Officer and then as Data Systems Officer responsible for the computer and communications divisions.

He then returned to graduate study in tropical storm research, receiving the degree of Master of Science from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology before reporting to the Environmental Prediction Research Facility as Executive Officer in August 1972.

In July 1974 he joined the faculty of the Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, California, where he is teaching in the Department of Meteorology.

He is a member of the U. S. Naval Institute, the American Meteorological Society, and an associate member of Sigma Xi.
